

DECEMBER: CREATIVE

ShelterBox info

At ShelterBox, we need to be creative in a number of ways, for instance:

- Our fundraising department is constantly thinking of new and innovative ways to spread awareness about our work.
- Our supporters dream up amazing and fantastic ideas to fundraise for us!
- Our ShelterBox Response Teams (SRTs) often come across challenging conditions in the field and have to be creative and resourceful in finding solutions for any problems they may encounter.
- We also need to be inventive sometimes when it comes to getting our boxes to the people who are in most need – they've been taken by bike, wheelbarrow and even camel!

We are also lucky enough to have the support of a number of people who are renowned for being creative: the actress Joanna Lumley is one of our patrons; the winner of MasterChef 2009, Matt Follas is a keen supporter and Andre Ellis, a well known local artist to Cornwall, created the images used on our Young ShelterBox website.

We receive hundreds of photos, drawings, stories, poems and more from our supporters and we love receiving each and every one of them. If your Scout group has any creative bits and pieces that you'd like to send in to us – please do! Our address is Unit 1A, Water – ma – Trout, Helston, Cornwall, TR13 8TZ. Alternatively, you can email them to youngshelterbox@shelterbox.org. We will try and get as many of the items we receive as possible on the Scouts' section of our Young ShelterBox website, www.youngshelterbox.org.
